BITS BAGS

Basic Items for Toddler Success

Lori and the amazing volunteer team have been hard at work assembling BITS Bags and caseworkers from our partner agencies have begun to pick them up.

This project was created over 10 years ago at the request of our partner agencies to address the need for age appropriate toys in their clients homes to help infants and toddlers with their development. Having access to these toys will allow for parent and child interaction and play at home. We provide these BITS Bags to children who may experience developmental delay due to lack of these simple interactive toys to stimulate them.

We are so thankful that this project has been such a success and that we have been able to work closely with caseworkers to meet the needs for their client families. With your help, we can get these bags into the hands of all of the children that need them.

For more information on this project please see our BITS info page

Building a Stronger Community

Every day, we at The Wish Project strive to build a better community for all. We seek out those who may have items in good condition that they would like to pass on, or to people who are interested in purchasing new items. We then give these items to the people in our community who need them. These clients reach out to us with specific needs and we strive to grant all of their wishes for basic necessities. We also partner with many local agencies, so that our reach is far. The caseworkers from these agencies are able to send clients to us who may not otherwise know that we can help.

This week we had a donor dropping off items that Patricia and Judy, of Matthew 2535, needed for their trips to the homeless camps in Lowell. While the donor was unloading, Patricia and Judy came to pick up a regular order. The items went from the donor straight to the car of the women who are bringing them to the streets. These people will be receiving warm blankets, hats and gloves, towels, and winter coats that are much needed.

By working together, we will succeed in building a stronger community.
